The image shows a screenshot of a Windows XP desktop. In the foreground, an "Internet Options" dialog box is open, with the "Content Advisor" tab selected. The "Trusted sites" section is active, showing a green checkmark icon and a description: "This zone contains Web sites that you trust not to damage your computer or data." Below this, there is a "Security level for this zone" section with "Custom" settings. The "Custom" settings include a list of options: "Custom settings", "To change the settings, click Custom Level.", and "To use the recommended settings, click Default Level." At the bottom of the dialog box are buttons for "OK", "Cancel", and "Apply".

In the background, the MSN homepage is visible. The page features a navigation bar with links to "Web", "Images", "News", "Maps", "Shopping", and "QnA". The date "Friday, April 13, 2007" is displayed. The main content area includes a section titled "Art Shows to See Now" with a photo of two people looking at a painting. Below this is a "Today's Picks" section with a list of items: "Study: Women not clicking with Internet videos", "Slate: The battle for Nigeria", and "NASCAR adapting to rules". To the right of this list is a "Spring fever" quiz. Further down is an "msn Health & Fitness" section with a photo of a woman and the headline "How Callie Lost 90 Pounds". Below this is an "Also on MSN" section with a photo of a woman and the headline "Reality TV stars' favorite hangouts". To the right of the "Today's Picks" section is a "FOX Sports" section with a photo of Kobe Bryant and the headline "Clippers overcome Kobe's 50". Below this is a "Money" section with a photo of a house and the headline "$1 billion for mortgage bailout". At the bottom right is a "Quotes" section with a table of stock market data.
